

ARE YOU:

New to the field?

This program provides a strong foundation in infant-family mental health to prepare you for the challenge and opportunity in this field.

Experienced in providing services to families?

This program provides you with advanced knowledge and help to tailor approaches to working with infant, toddler, and families in a local community context.

Working in a related field with an interest in learning more about infants and toddlers?

This program helps you better understand and realize the challenges faced by families with infant and toddler, and how to adapt your efforts accordingly.

APPLICATIONS CURRENTLY BEING ACCEPTED.

ROLLING ADMISSIONS

Application accepted all year for both consideration and application NOW.

TUITION INFORMATION:

In-state tuition is $1,380 per course (subject to change)

Out-of-state tuition is $2,717 per course

(subject to change)

Tuition waived for state employees

Limited tuition assistance may be available through the Family Study Center

APPLY TODAY — IT'S EASY!

No GRE is required

Write a statement of intent

Order of undergraduate transcript

INFANT-FAMILY MENTAL HEALTH GRADUATE CERTIFICATE PROGRAM

A one-year, online program from the Family Study Center

Director: James P. McHale, Ph.D.

